

Woburn Abbey

Full of history and beautiful objects.

THE
OVEN

A multi-million-pound refurbishment of this regal interior has created an even more distinctively elegant setting for your perfect wedding

East Midlands Conference Centre, set among 330 landscaped acres along the border of the vibrant city of Nottingham, offers you a choice of two distinctive, equally enchanting entertainment environments.

The Clay Oven views your wedding day celebration as the opportunity to produce beautiful, lifelong memories through excellent service, fantastic foods and a caring, professional response to all your needs.

Set in 3,000 pristine acres that are home to 10 species of deer, Woburn Abbey offers a sublimely elegant setting for your wedding day gatherings. You and your guests will be transported to another era within the beautiful walls of this majestic and historic place, home to the 15th Duke and his family.

The gracefully austere Sculpture Gallery seats 240 guests in comfortable opulence. The lovely old-world charm and beauty of this space is effectively complemented by thoroughly modern facilities.

Several marvelous banquet and dining rooms are also available for smaller receptions and civil ceremonies that will delightfully frame your special occasion.

The experienced staff of The Clay Oven believes in the beauty of your special day. We want your wedding to be a day of delightful memories.

Syon Park

Home of the Duke of Northumberland

The Clay Oven delights in bringing the finest fare to your wedding tables and anticipating every contingency to ensure you and your guests relax into a delicious reverie.

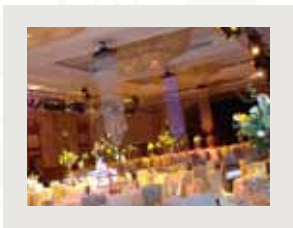

The Clay Oven delights in bringing the finest fare to your wedding tables and anticipating every contingency to ensure you and your guests relax into a delicious reverie.

It would be difficult indeed to find a more exquisite site for your wedding celebration and ceremonies than Syon Park. 200 acres of parklands host 40 acres of stunningly designed gardens and a beautiful ornamental lake, as well as the grand structures of Syon House, home of the Duke of Northumberland, and the famed Great Conservatory.

The Great Conservatory, built in 1826 by Charles Fowler, inspired designer Joseph Paxton in his creation of the Crystal Palace. This marvelous architectural work seats 150 guests in unique splendor and brings a special grandeur to your special day.

During the summer months, a lovely Marquee is erected. This graceful structure is perfect for large gatherings, easily hosting up to 800 guests for welcome drinks and delicious canapés.

The breathtaking Great Hall within the Syon House is generously offered for civil ceremony use, accommodating 120 seated guests. This regally appointed space lends its special character to enhance your special day. Celebratory drinks following your lovely ceremony may be served in the delightful inner courtyard, where perfumed flowers and a charming fountain create a luscious ambience for you and your guests. The Clay Oven prides itself in presenting peerless cuisine for your wedding gala, adding another dimension of delight to your special day.

Attention to detail and a dedication to your satisfaction are guiding principles of The Clay Oven professionals...continually striving to make your special day as wonderfully unforgettable as possible.

Staging your gala in the stunningly elegant and prestigious atmosphere of the Hilton London Paddington hotel assures you of a most memorable wedding day. This historic location, opened in 1854, has a distinct connection to the Royal Family and, in 2002, a complete refurbishment was undertaken to bring its classic Victorian beauty to new heights.

Of the 17 singularly attractive rooms available for entertaining, the flagship of the group is the Great Western Suite, which seats up to 400 guests in the airy, opulent style of the Victorian era. The remaining rooms, named for famous locomotives, beautifully accommodate smaller receptions and bring a lovely tasteful quality to your gathering.

The Clay Oven believes that your happiness is paramount and strives at every moment to bring you and your guests together for an occasion whose memory lasts a lifetime.
